Reading Culture Award

We are delighted to announce that Farmor's School has achieved the Reading Culture Award from the National Literacy Trust, recognising our long-standing commitment to reading. The award follows a successful case study submission by our dedicated Librarian, Ms Barker-Harrold, as part of the National Year of Reading.

The case study highlighted the work both within the library and the wider school community. It showcases the many ways in which we encourage, celebrate and promote a love of reading.

From the welcoming and engaging environment of our school library, the exciting calendar of library events, to the many reading initiatives across the school, reading remains at the heart of our school culture. We are proud of the efforts of our staff and students in helping to foster a community where reading is valued, encouraged, and celebrated.
